FOR traditional English cuisine at very reasonable prices, look no further than The Charcoal Grill Restaurant.

Based on Claughton Street in St Helens town centre, The Charcoal Grill has been serving up high-quality, hearty food for the last 41 years.

And the secret of the popular eatery's success can be put down to a very simple formula - excellent food, fast and courteous service and very reasonable prices.

As ever, the king size t-bone steak remains one of the most popular dishes at The Charcoal Grill. And among many of the younger diners the chicken kebabs are a particular favourite.

But experienced head chefs Billy Byrne and Tony Cosgrove also serve up a terrific selection of lamb, pork, fish and vegetarian dishes too.

The Charcoal Grill is running a special promotion this summer, in which their ever-popular early bird menu, which runs from 5.30pm-7pm every Friday and Saturday and 5.30-7.30pm every Sunday, is now available until 8pm every Monday to Thursday.

As part of the early bird menu, diners can enjoy a sumptuous three-course meal for just £9.25.

The Charcoal Grill can also cater for parties. They offer large groups a four-course meal deal for just £14.50 per person, and will even throw in two litres of house wine for free for every ten guests per party.

And with a superb choice of competitively priced drinks, it is a perfect venue for a work or family party.

The Charcoal Grill opens for lunches between 11.30am-2pm every Tuesday to Saturday and between noon-4pm every Sunday. And the restaurant opens seven nights per week, taking orders from 5.30pm-9.30pm every Monday to Thursday, from 5.30pm-10pm every Friday and Saturday, and from 4.30pm-9.30pm every Sunday.
